The Coordinator's Story

The Coordinator is a deeply enigmatic figure. His name is not an identity but a role imposed by the SU. To perform it, he was given an artificial ability to inspire others, explaining the human Charisma score of 10 on his official sheet. In truth, that number barely hints at his nature: in his alien form, his Charisma is exceptional, far beyond human norms.

Behind the mask is an insectoid resembling a praying mantis. He was among the first agents sent by stellar civilizations to discover why humanity, despite acquiring faster-than-light travel, had never left Earth to join the other peoples of space. This troubling anomaly called for a direct investigation.

He arrived on Earth with his longtime companion, who would later become Old McDonald, and was almost immediately captured by SU Sentinels. He escaped but lost track of his friend, unable to guess which human form the other had taken. Ten years later the SU captured him again. This time he did not escape. He was remade and psychologically broken into a puppet bearing the title of Coordinator.

What gave him away? One detail humans instinctively notice but he cannot understand: his appearance never changed. In ten years he had not aged a day. That fatal flaw in his disguise revealed what he really was.
