Robin Dubois's Story

Robin Dubois was originally an ordinary human. The son of P4R15's mayor, he cared about the city's residents from an early age. His exceptional intellect drew the SU's attention and earned him a place in a special program with other children. There he distinguished himself through intelligence, natural charisma, and remarkable wisdom. At twenty, the SU offered him a more invasive program. Robin accepted with full knowledge of what it involved, alongside other talented young people and respected elders. A neural chip was implanted in his brain, letting him communicate directly with the SU and enhancing his already exceptional abilities (*). Robin alone developed predictive powers. He and the others now make decisions for the city by vote.

At first, the SU sent him visions of the near future, helping him maintain order. The visions proved uncannily accurate. He founded his Church of Renewal around 2096. Over time, his visions reached further ahead. Two years before the uprising of 2100, he saw it coming and proposed that the city's SU become autonomous, cutting itself off from the rest of the world and sparing its people the bloodshed in other cities' camps and the population's mind control. To his surprise, a vote was held and the proposal passed.

Robin tells the players his story at 7/10 reputation, omitting the voting system. He reveals that detail at 9/10. To gain his favor, players must do what is right, not merely obey the SU. Repeated visits to the church, helping citizens, and certain keywords can raise their reputation.

INVENTORY

MAX: kg

Brain chip	If the players search Robin's skull, they find the brain chip on a search roll of at least 18. Once implanted, the chip grants +2 to Intelligence, Wisdom, and Charisma. The recipient must be a citizen; otherwise it explodes and kills them.
