Marie's Story

The enigmatic Marie says little. There is a reason: she is an undercover alien, a member of an avian species. She arrived on Earth only a few months ago. Back in 2070, Earth's SU appeared to signal that humanity was ready. Other civilizations rejoiced and prepared to welcome the newcomers. Yet nothing happened. No human ship ever left Earth, despite humanity having the necessary technology. Her mission was to infiltrate Earth and find out why humans had never met their neighbors. Several agents were sent over the following thirty years; none returned. Marie soon understood why. As soon as her ship entered the atmosphere, the SU shot it down. Severely injured and disfigured, she crashed in July 2099. A group of exiles found her and, mistaking her for a human, cared for her as best they could. Earth's medical advances saved her, but her true form was lost forever. In October, she registered with the SU as the daughter of an exile and entered the V10L3T building, determined to complete her mission and file her report. The exiles' kindness had given her hope. But as the weeks passed, Marie watched, analyzed, and began to doubt. The humanity she had come to meet seemed gone, replaced by a domesticated society under a machine that thinks for its people. Perhaps she would remain trapped in this sterile world for the rest of her life. Marie reveals her secret only to players who oppose the SU and have a high reputation with her (8/10).
